VANGUARD TARGET RETIREMENT TRUSTS II

A diversified portfolio through one investment, tailored for your planned retirement journey.

Your State of Hawaii Deferred Compensation Plan allows you to customize your ideal portfolio by selecting from an array of investment types and funds. Among your fund options are the Vanguard Target Retirement Trusts II. The Vanguard Target Retirement Trusts II offer the simplicity of a complete portfolio through a single investment. These Collective Investment Trusts (“CITs”) are customized strategies that are designed to balance growth potential, manage risk tolerance, and adapt to its time horizon to retirement. The CITs are not publicly traded, but are widely used in retirement plans including defined contribution plans similar to the Island Savings Plan. These CITs consist of twelve (12) different funds based on an expected retirement date.

What is a Collective Investment Trust?

Each of the Vanguard Target Retirement Trust II funds are a Collective Investment Trust (“CIT”). A CIT is a tax-exempt, pooled investment vehicle available only to qualified retirement plans and certain governmental retirement plans (as defined in Internal Revenue Code Section 414(d)).

Several characteristics of CITs set them apart from mutual funds and provide many unique and noteworthy features. CITs are not required to be registered with the Securities Exchange Commission (SEC), as is required for mutual funds. Additionally, most CITs do not have a ticker symbol because they are not registered investments. Although CITs are unregistered, they are regulated.

Benefits of investing in a CIT:

- Many CITs have similar structure to the mutual funds.
- CITs can be a cost-efficient option due to having generally lower fees.
- CITs are easy to maintain. There typically are little to no marketing and compliance related costs with a CIT.
- Management fees also tend to be lower and have a potential to decrease as plan level assets increase.

Diversify your investments through one single investment.

About the Vanguard Target Retirement Trusts II

Vanguard Target Retirement Trust II funds are target-date funds. The target-date is the approximate date when investors plan to retire and may begin withdrawing their money. The asset allocation of the target-date funds will become more conservative as the target-date approaches by lessening your equity exposure and increasing your exposure in fixed income investments. The principal value of an investment in a target-date fund is not guaranteed at any time, including the target-date. There is no guarantee that the fund will provide adequate retirement income.

A target-date fund should not be selected solely based on age or retirement date. Before investing, participants should carefully consider the fund’s investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses, as well as their age, anticipated retirement date, risk tolerance, other investments owned, and planned withdrawals.

Selecting the appropriate investment

Each investment is named with a target retirement year in mind. If you are not sure, add ‘65’ to the year that you were born or refer to the chart. Once you have chosen your target retirement year and fund, review the mix of the fund’s stocks and bonds, and consider whether the asset allocation mix suits your current savings progress, investment objective, and risk profile. If you prefer a mix that is more conservative or with more risk, then consider another target retirement fund or complement your target retirement fund with other funds from the Plan’s core investment line-up. Remember that you should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses of any fund before investing. Also keep in mind, the principal value of a target-date fund is not guaranteed at any time, including the target date.

How the Vanguard Target Investments work

The investments are designed to help simplify diversification, asset reallocation, and manual management.

- The year in the investment name is the approximate year in which an investor expects to retire and leave the workforce.
- A target-date investment will hold a higher proportion of stocks the further it is from its target date.
- As the target date approaches, Vanguard will automatically rebalance your fund portfolio to help manage risk. This generally involves decreasing its stock holdings and increasing its bond holdings. Bonds usually have a lower risk of loss, though they also have lower potential gains than stocks.
- When the investment reaches its target date, you don't need to take your money out; the gradual move from stocks to bonds simply continues automatically. Target-date investments are designed to keep your money invested appropriately throughout your retirement years.
- Low cost of 7.5 basis points (0.075%).

The Vanguard Target Retirement Trusts II are collective investment trust(s) maintained by Vanguard. Vanguard is not affiliated with Prudential Financial or its affiliates. Collective investment trusts (CITs) are bank-administered trusts subject to regulation under applicable banking laws. CITs hold commingled assets that invest for a specific style, such as Growth. CITs are not registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and are available only to qualified retirement plans, such as 401(k) plans, or eligible government plans, and their participants.

All investing is subject to risk, including the possible loss of the money you invest. Investments in Target Retirement Funds are subject to the risks of their underlying funds. An investment in a Target Retirement Fund is not guaranteed at any time, including on or after the target-date. Bond funds are subject to the risk that an issuer will fail to make payments on time, and that bond prices will decline because of rising interest rates or negative perceptions of an issuer's ability to make payments. Diversification does not ensure a profit or protect against a loss.

The stated asset allocation may be subject to change. It is possible to lose money in a target-date fund, including losses near and following retirement. Investments in the funds are not deposits or obligations of any bank and are not insured or guaranteed by any governmental agency or instrumentality.
